GOVT OFFENSIVE BREAKS UP LARGE BOOZE SYNDICATE

Thirty-Five Raids Carried On Simultaneously Along 200-Mile "Front"

THIRTY-TWO ARRESTED
Headquarters Located in Mansion at Highlands, N. J., Estate

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—One of the biggest liquor smuggling syndicates operating since the Volstead Law went into effect was broken up today as a result of a spectacular offensive by the Federal Government. Thirty-five raids were carried out simultaneously along a 200-mile "front" extending from Atlantic City to the eastern tip of Long Island.

Thirty-two persons were arrested, including Emanuel ("Manny") Kessler, who at one time was known as "the king of the bootleggers." It was believed that "Manny," a picturesque and colorful character, had retired after "doing a stretch" in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary five years ago with other infamous American bootleggers.

The liquor "ring," which supplied booze to the entire East, had their headquarters in a mansion on an estate at Highlands, N. J., which had been fortified with ammunition, firearms and machine gun emplacements. It was honey-combed with underground vaults and passages in which huge quantities of wines and liquor were stored.

A fully equipped unlicensed radio broadcasting station operating from this "headquarters" was taken over by the prohibition agents, 130 of whom took part in the raids.

The liquor syndicate operated a fleet of rum ships between the Atlantic Coast and St. Pierre Miquelon, off Canada, and also to and from Bermuda. The radio operator at the stronghold of the bootleggers at Highlands was "talking" with one of the ring's big freighters, bringing in 5,000 cases of "good Canadian liquor" at the time the raids were staged.

Seized in his fortress known as "The Mansion" to the people of Highlands, "Manny" Kessler, a squat, active little man, smiled genially but refused to talk. Neither he nor his companions captured at headquarters made any attempt to resist arrest. Malcolm MacMaster, radio operator, would not talk, either. One of Kessler's well-known lieutenants, Morris Sweetwood, was also taken into custody, as was Patrick Connors, a clerk in a swanky Atlantic City hotel.

The wholesale raids are of such major import that New York City is now facing a "booze famine," it was admitted by night club owners here. The raids were the result of weeks of careful planning and were participated in by seventy-five treasury agents, thirty-five deputy United States marshals and twenty New Jersey state troopers.

The machinery of the syndicate was geared to smuggle in as much as 10,000 cases of liquor a week, according to unofficial estimates. In cut form, as the booze reaches the consumer, it would be double that amount. And on the basis of present retail prices this quantity would mean a turnover of $1,000,000 a week, although the wholesale price charged by the ring would be much lower. The syndicate is believed to have supplied the bulk of liquor to New York and, in fact, to the entire Northeast.

Federal officials say the personnel of the organization included skippers and seamen to man their fleet of vessels, men to handle the cargoes, "contact men" in charge of the speed boat fleet, truckmen, chauffeurs, warehouse operatives, wireless operators, office executives, salesmen, sales managers, "fixers," gunmen, racketeers and slugs. The organization has been functioning smoothly for a long time.

The equipment of the syndicate included six vessels in regular service between the Atlantic Coast, Canada and Bermuda. Each vessel was equipped to carry 3,000 cases of liquor. The contraband was taken off near the American shores by speed boats and delivered to trucks at obscure points.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK IS THE BUILDING SURVEY RESULT

President of S. W. Straus & Co. Confident of Continued Prosperity

INTERRUPTION UNLIKELY

By W. S. COUSINS
(INS Financial Editor)
(Copyright 1929 by INS)

NEW YORK, October 17.—"There come brief periods when the progress of the building industry will be impeded, but building is such a prime necessity of human life that any prolonged or serious interruption of the Nation's building program is extremely unlikely."

This confident survey of building conditions in the United States was made in an exclusive interview with International New Service today by Nicholas Roberts, president of S. M. Straus and Company. Mr. Roberts bases his forecast upon reliable reports received from the offices of the Straus organization all over the United States.

According to Mr. Roberts, it is improbable there will be any change of consequence in the building situation during the balance of the present year. "Easing of the money situation," he said, "might bring about greater activities, but it is safe to assume that building activities of the immediate future, based on supply and demand, will continue at levels not far from those of recent months."

"While there has been some slowing down in urban building activities throughout the country during the present year," said Mr. Roberts, "it would not be consistent with good business judgment to view this situation with any suggestion of distress. The processes that have been at work in the building industry this year have simply been an extension in somewhat accentuated form of conditions that have prevailed more or less constantly since 1925."

Mr. Roberts pointed out that the current losses in building operations from month to month have been to quite an extent a reflection of strained currency conditions and high rates in the money market.

"A secondary cause," he said, "has been a natural drift toward a normal status after the tremendous post-war activities which reached their climax immediately preceding 1925."

SOUTH LANGHORNE PLANS ORGANIZING LOCAL BANK

Meeting is Held and Method of Procedure is Outlined To Business Men

DECIDE TO GO AHEAD

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Oct. 17.—Members of the South Langhorne Business Men's Association met Monday night and discussed ways and means of organizing a bank for that community.

The meeting was held in the banquet room of Wunsch Brothers restaurant and was attended by about 30 members of the association.

After routine business had been transacted the meeting was thrown open to the discussion of the advisability of forming a bank.

W. E. Leedom, treasurer of the Newtown Title & Trust Company, Newtown, was the speaker. Mr. Leedom was introduced by John S. Lappan, president of the Association.

The speaker outlined the procedure to establish a bank and answered questions. This made it possible for those present to get a thorough understanding what must be done and what would have to be done to first procure a bank and then to operate it.

Charles S. Doyle, Burgess of South Langhorne, who also is a member of the committee working on the bank project with George W. Brelford, which committee arranged the special meeting of Monday evening, said that the nearest bank to South Langhorne is located at Langhorne. He stated that relations with the Langhorne Bank had always been pleasant and that it was a good institution to do business with. "A bank in our own community would make it more convenient," he said. "It would save over 100 miles per year for each person having to go to Langhorne to do banking business once each week and of course those going more frequently would save more."

A motion was made that the Association proceed with the bank project. It was decided that the par value of the bank stock should be $10 per share.

A public meeting is to be arranged to take place in the Casino on Monday evening at eight o'clock. Everyone interested is invited to attend this meeting.

STUDENTS TO SEARCH TOMBSTONES HERE FOR HISTORY DATA

Historical Commission Desires
Valuable Information to Be Found in Burying Grounds

A WEALTH OF HISTORY

Information Now Being Compiled and Will be Studied
By the Children

Bristol school children are to add the Pennsylvania Historical Commission in gathering the valuable information which lies hidden on tombstones in the cemeteries here.

State Superintendent, Dr. John A. H. Keith, has addressed the following letter on the project to Superintendent Howard E. James:

"Dear sir:
"There is a wealth of unpublished history of old Pennsylvania on tombstones in various cemeteries of the Commonwealth. The State Historical Commission has requested assistance in securing this valuable information. The request is a challenge to our schools to help write the history of our Commonwealth. It is an opportunity to make our school children active participants in a project as rich in instructional possibilities as it will be historically valuable."

"In response to the request of the Historical Commission, I am asking superintendents to accept responsibility for gathering the desired information in the areas over which they have jurisdiction."

"The Commission desires:
"1. A list and location of all cemeteries and old burial grounds, in communities, connected with churches, on farms, etc.

"2. A copy of all data, epitaphs, etc., on tombstones recording deaths prior to 1851. Inscriptions should be copied in whatever language they appear.

"3. A report of any unusual or peculiar tombstones or tombstone designs as scrolls, book, animal, picture, etc.

"4. The name and location of all abandoned burial grounds.

"5. The number and location of all tombstones that have no inscription thereon."

Much of interest has already been unearthed in St. James's Church Yard where there are many old burial plots and some of them are the resting places of historical characters.

The information gathered is to be typed on sheets of paper 8 1/2 inches by 11 inches, with left and top margin of 1 1/2 inches to be used for inscription. The name and location of the cemetery is to be placed on each of the sheets.

WAITING FOR FATE

During most of the last two centuries Baltimore held to its individuality as tenaciously, perhaps, as any city in the country. It was an individuality, like that vague thing we call personality, it is not easy to define but very easy to sense. The city resisted change. An abundance of natural advantages tempted it to expand, but its citizens were content to be sufficient within themselves. Then came the great Baltimore fire.

Out of that disastrous conflagration came a new purpose, a new vision. Hustle and enterprise were necessary if even a little was to be retrieved from the ashes. The spirit became infectious; Baltimore began to look beyond its long-narrowed horizons. Since then the city has known no rest, no stagnation.

Mrs. O'Leary's cow may have caused the fire that destroyed Chicago but Chicago is not resentful. A bigger and better Chicago arose from the ashes. There are in the United States a number of beautiful cities whose transition from original ugliness is traced to cyclones, floods, earthquakes or other disaster.

But why must communities, which vision themselves as they are not, put off the change of scenery and spirit until some catastrophe wipes out the old? Does it take an obstreperous cow or nature in a violent mood to awaken them? The community that is always waiting for a cow to kick over a lantern is the sort of a town of which homecoming sons say "Just like I left her 50 years ago."

RESULTS COUNT

"I am impressed with what appears to be the sterile character of the labor organizations here. Abroad there is thinking and pioneering with consequent growth. At home thinking and pioneering are absent. Abroad there is progress. At home there is stagnation."

These reflections were inspired in an American writer by attendance at an international congress of Labor and Socialist parties in Europe. These words set forth his impressions, his own opinions. But it appears that what he observed registered itself upon his mind in much the same manner that an object registers itself on a photographic plate—the dark as light and the light as dark.

If rationalism, intelligent conservatism and reciprocity are sterile, then organized American labor is sterile. By the same token, if radicalism, revolution, theorizing, political experimenting and blind change are "thinking and pioneering," then European labor is doing the thinking and pioneering for the labor of the world.

Like many before him, this observer has made the unconscious error of glorifying the new and different. He is under the delusion that every change is a change for the better, that there can be no progress without revolution and no revolution without progress.

Judging from the fruits of the two methods, labor should aspire to sterility. With all its "thinking and pioneering" European labor has achieved nothing in comparison with the "spoils" of American labor.

Another ice age in 25,000 years won't worry anybody if present styles continue to toughen the human hide.

AVIATION IN PENNSYLVANIA

By Leo Dolan

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

Moving to the fore in Pennsylvania's aviation activities, Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh plans the installation of an airplane testing tunnel, rib-testing machine and special equipment for the calibration of aeronautical instruments to bolster the aeronautical course at the University.

The proposed testing tunnel, of the newest and most approved type, will be the second of its kind in the United States, the other being at Langley Field.

The aerodynamic wind tunnel, simply a glorified ventilation duct of square, round or octagonal cross-section, is used to test the reactions of exact reproductions of full-sized planes, greatly reduced in scale. The model plane is suspended in the tunnel by means of wires and a motor driven propeller, rotating at one end, sends air currents coursing through the tunnel at velocities varying from 30 to 100 or more miles per hour.

Thus, the wind pressure on the model is measured and to the measurements are added certain formulas based on proved principles, making it fairly easy to design an airplane which seldom fails to perform as expected.

Undismayed by previous failures, Charles Shenk, of Elizabethtown, aviation enthusiast, is repairing the wreckage of his home-made airplane with the determination of getting the nondescript craft into the air for a sustained flight.

Shenk's machine, with a pared down bedpost for a propeller, two baby-carriage wheels and a pair of discs from a wagon for a landing gear, has twice come to grief but, as Shenk says, "she flew!" On his most recent attempt last week Shenk attained an altitude of twenty-five feet before his plane went into a side-slip and crashed, shattering one wing.

Undeniable proof that the younger generation does not hold a monopoly on aviation interest is offered from two sources in the state. Mrs. Martha A. Robinson, of Punxsutawney, recently celebrated the 90th anniversary of her birth by taking an airplane ride over the Grube airfield and expressed herself as well pleased with this mode of travel.

P. W. Chabot, 61-year-old business man of Pittsburgh, is rapidly becoming proficient at the controls. Chabot recently soloed his Eagle Rock plane from Rodgers Field to the Pittsburgh-Greensburg field and made a perfect landing. Chabot began taking flying instructions only two months ago and already has nearly a score of flying hours as a solo pilot to his credit.

Pointing out the good fortune of Ambridge in being located on an important river, the Ohio, where hydroplanes could land, Captain W. J. Austin, associated with the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, told the Ambridge Board of Trade that the city would be greatly benefited by an airport. Capt. Austin advised that Ambridge start its aviation career with a landing field from which planes could shuttle to nearby airports, the Ambridge airport to follow in the natural course of aviation development.

Marshall C. Hoppin, landing field specialist of the United States Department of Commerce, declares that the proposed Philadelphia city airport site at Hog Island is "the most marvelous airport possibility in the United States."

The death of Frank Datin, Pittsburgh air mail pilot, at Ebensburg, was due to reckless operation of the plane and stunting at too low an altitude, according to a coroner's verdict. Datin attempted a roll when only a few hundred feet in the air and his plane slipped into a tailspin and crashed, the pilot suffering fatal injuries.

When any infant development reaches the stage where it figures in litigation, it properly can be said to have "arrived." Raymond E. Hartman, owner of the Beauford Farms Flying Service Airport, near Harrisburg, has filed suit for $10,000 damages against Benjamin C. Breneman, of Harrisburg, as the result of an airplane-auto collision at the airport. The plane was wrecked. Hartman claims that the automobile was parked on the airport runway and that in taking off, the plane struck the automobile. Both wings and the propeller of the plane were smashed.

Three thousand horrified spectators saw Baker Diehl, 22, of Duncansville, fall to his death at Altoona when his parachute failed to open. Diehl jumped from an airplane as a stunt and fell 2800 feet to the earth, struggling frantically all the way with the ripcord of the chute which had become tangled.

EMILIE

Messrs. Charles Bills and Scott Dennen arrived in Philadelphia at 1.30 a. m. Saturday morning, to get in line for seats for Saturday's ball game. They succeeded in getting seats about 1.30 p. m. They feel their waiting was worth the effort as so many did not succeed in getting in to see the game.

Miss Lidle Wilson attended the exhibition of fine arts by the Phillips Mill Community Association, at The Mill, New Hope, and visited at the Davenport, who make hand woven rugs and bags. New Hope, in company with Mrs. Clinton Neagley, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith and son, Alvin, of Fallington.

Miss Eva Stephen, of Philadelphia, week-ended at her home here and had as week-end guests her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Markley, of Winterhaven, Florida, and as Sunday guests, Mr. R. Allen Snyder, of Philadelphia, Mrs. W. W. Blinn, Miss Anne Ettinger and Miss Lidle Wilson.

Mrs. George Garretson and Miss Nellie Wright, of Edgely, were supper guests on Sunday of Miss Eva Stephen.

Messrs. Edward Praul and Warren Bruce were Thursday evening visitors of Mr. William Praul.

loss amounting only to $300,000,000 and bringing the total to $6,200,000,000. From 1926 to 1927 there was a much more pronounced drop, the total for the latter year being $5,500,000,000. Last year there was another decline but it was inconsequential. The loss was $165,000,000, making the total volume for 1928, $5,335,000,000.

"It is of course not possible at this time to estimate what the loss will be for 1929 but reports from more than 550 of the leading cities and towns of the country show a decline of approximately 7 per cent for the first nine months as compared with the same period last year.

"There is certainly nothing discouraging or alarming in the story told by these figures. They mean that the building industry, having reached somewhat abnormal proportions in the immediate post-war period, has in the last four years been getting down to a basis more consistent with normal demands.

"Every city and town of importance in the country is enjoying a steady growth in population which calls for more building," said the head of the S. W. Straus organization. "As the prosperity of the country continues, business expands and additional demands for construction are created." All types of buildings, therefore, tend to become obsolete and must be replaced by modern structures. Another factor of pronounced effect is the gradual improvement in the standard of living of the American people, which means finer homes and apartments. Even the small declines that took place in 1926, 1927, 1928 and so far in 1929 have resulted in a much better adjustment of supply and demand and have laid a sounder basis for the future of the building industry."

Home Modernizing Movement Helps Civic Growth

STRANGERS LOCATE IN THE PROGRESSIVE CITIES

BASE JUDGMENT ON THE APPEARANCE OF HOMES

Making your home a better place to live in has a marked influence on the neighborhood in which you live and also in turn on the growth of the city.

A city is but a collection of homes. It lives or dies as the number of homes increases or decreases. The growing city is usually one with many new fine residential streets filled with attractive buildings. The city that is unprogressive, behind the times and slowly dying of dry rot is the city where the homes are old, antiquated looking and decidedly out of date with respect to modern conveniences and comforts.

Strangers Judge by Appearance

The stranger to the city, the casual motorist who is passing through the community judges the city almost entirely by appearance of the homes which he sees.

If the homes are modern in appearance, with those delightful sweeping roof lines that speak of the newer architecture, he receives a pleasant impression. He is immediately led to believe that the city also is progressive and wide awake. The homes which he sees are an index to the community. Many a business man who is endeavoring to locate in a new community judges his future in a community entirely by the appearance of its homes. With a few days in which to investigate he "looks over the town," allowing his visual impressions to guide him toward making a decision. Whether that decision is satisfactory or otherwise largely depends upon what he sees. The homes determine his future.

Pleasant Homes Make Progressive City

More than one civic worker has asserted that a community of pleasant homes is a progressive one.

The appearance of the homes is largely an index of the spirit of the people of the community. If these homes are modern both within and without, the owners are living in an environment that induces a spirit of progress. No man can live in an old, weatherbeaten, wornout house and be progressive. His environment is entirely against him—it subdues his spirit, fills him with a feeling of discouragement and despair. This feeling of depression is reflected in his attitude on life and his surroundings. It makes a poor town.

The more modern the homes the more progressive the town—that seems to be the rule and an investigation shows that the better towns are those with pleasant homes and beautiful streets.

Every home owner owes it to his city to keep it headed straight on the road to progress. The most profitable way to do this is to swing into line on the home modernization movement—make the home up to date as to exterior, and convenient and comfortable on the inside. Modernization is a tonic that cures worn-out homes and cities and makes them alive and progressive once more.

THE HEATING PLANT DEPENDS ON PROPER CIRCULATION

No matter what type of heating plant you have down in your basement, there is one thing you must keep constantly in mind: Its success depends on the law of circuit. The circulation must be constant.

With warm air, for instance, cool air enters the heating chamber and rises, passing through the warm air ducts and out into the rooms of the house. As it cools the air sweeps to the floor entering the cold air register and passing once more to the heating chamber. If this circuit is impeded the flow of air stops and the heating ability of the furnace is impaired.

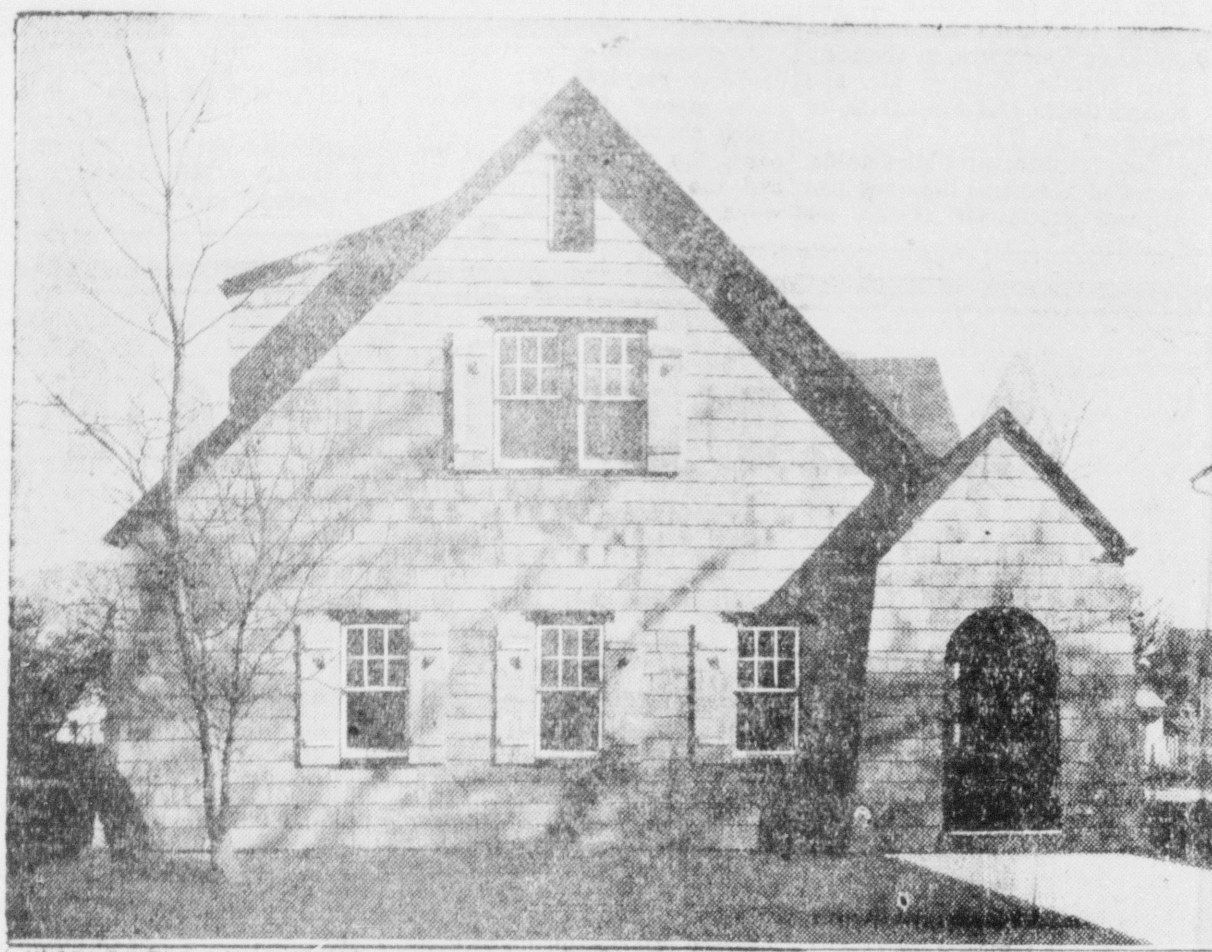

The same law of circuits works with steam. Steam condenses as it cools and runs back to the boiler so more hot steam may enter the radiators. The hot water keeps in circulation also so if the house is to be kept warm.

If you have a warm air furnace in your home, and they are very popular with small houses, make certain that the cold air duct leading to the heating chamber around the fire box balances with the area of the warm air pipes leading to the various rooms of the house. It is obvious that the amount of air that enters the heating chamber determines the amount of warm air that comes out. If the flow is restricted, then the supply of warm air will not be adequate.

Many home owners complain that they cannot heat distant rooms. The trouble invariably lies with a restricted circulation. The cold air ducts cannot supply the needed air and accordingly certain rooms go cold.

MODERNIZATION ROLLS BACK THE YEARS

No one passing the above house would suspect that it was once the time-worn house pictured at the right. Modernization has done wonders here toward improving both the exterior and interior. These views show what modernizing will do for a house.

MODERN LAMP HAS DISTINCTIVE BEAUTY

The housewife who wants to keep up to date cannot change her furniture at frequent intervals due to its large first cost. She must purchase these heavier and more expensive pieces with permanency in mind.

But accessories such as lamps, can be changed at slighter cost when the need for freshening the interior appears.

New styles in lamps have recently been offered which are a far cry from the flower-decorated, fringed and lace-trimmed fixtures of previous days. These newer styles of art lamps are decidedly different. Extreme simplicity distinguishes them and they add a satisfactory note of repose to the home.

While some of the shapes in lamps are startling, the tendency is toward a more restrained modernism which depends for its beauty of grace of contour and liveliness of materials. The shade and the base are units, made to supplement each other. The same design appears in both.

The shape of the base may be odd and the coloring in keeping. The same motif usually is found in the shade that accompanies it. Parchment shades are popular among the newer lamps although a number of lamps with silk and mica shades are being offered as strictly in the mode.

UNWANTED HOUSE NOW NEIGHBORHOOD PRIDE

The quaint looking story and a half house to the left grew from the plain, ugly house below. The old building stood idle and neglected until the magic of modernization touched it and threw back the mantle of years.

Surrounded by long, uncared for grass and scraggling trees, it was weather-beaten and forlorn, just an old house that no one wanted to buy or rent.

But when modernized it became one of the show places of the street. It was the talk of the neighborhood. The quaint arched entrance, and shuttered windows add a touch of the unusual to the dwelling. The stained shingled sides are finished in warm tones that speak of hospitality and good will. Today it is the kind of a house that real folks live in.

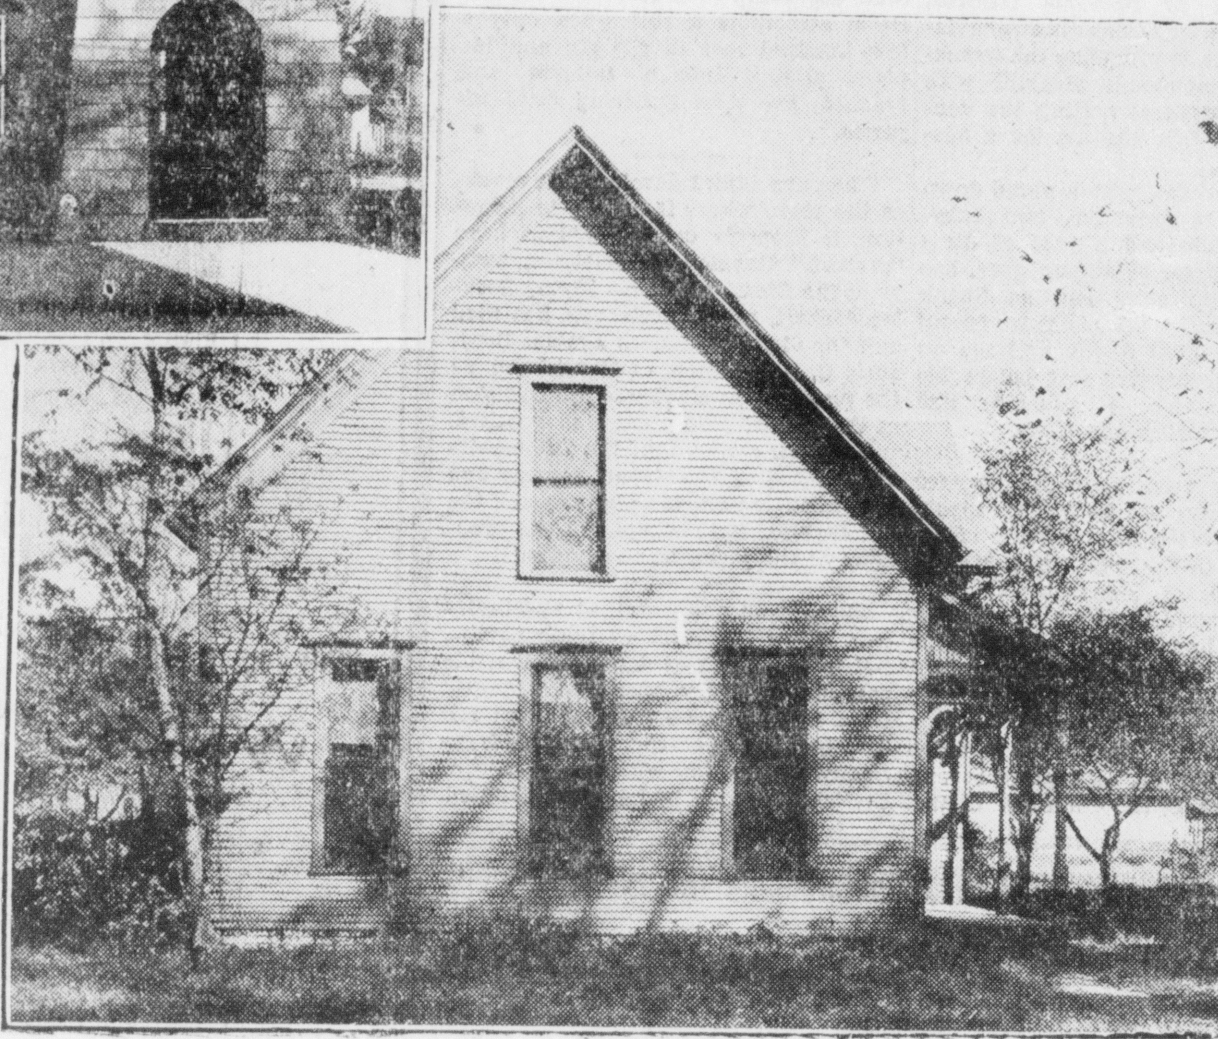

New Atmosphere and Feeling Contrast the two illustrations and see how easily the new atmosphere and feeling have been created. The old porch at the side of the building was torn away because its gingerbread trimming spoke of an architecture of the nineties. No matter how sturdy the timbers or honest the workmanship, the old lines make the house definitely a relic of the past.

In place of the open porch a new design in porch was introduced, a porch with shingle covered pillars and a gabled roof. It is modern in appearance, fully in keeping with the times.

The original siding of clapboards was covered with stained shingles. New window sash and trim were substituted for the old time, high narrow windows. The batten shutters of odd design set off the windows in an artistic manner.

DELAYED ACTION

frequently is the reason why a property owner is under-insured. While he has been waiting for a chance to order the additional insurance he required, fire has destroyed his property.

The services of a well-organized insurance agency would have made it convenient for him to secure the additional protection when he first realized he needed it.

Ward's Participates In Big Light Jubilee

Mr. Duerr, manager of Montgomery Ward & Co.'s store, announced today that his store will take an active part in commemorating the invention of the first successful incandescent electric lamp by Edison, October 21, 1879.

Extensive plans have been prepared for an unusually interesting historical electrical window. An actual replica of the first "carbon lamp" will be shown in comparison with the newest means of illumination—the 100-watt lamp. The windows will also display in actual photographs Thomas A. Edison's own experimental laboratory at Menlo Park, N. J., in which the lamp was perfected, and many other interesting photographs relative to the contemporaneous growth of Montgomery Ward's stores. The public is especially urged to see the historical display, which is of much educational value.

DOYLESTOWN TO PLAY BRISTOL HIGH TOMORROW

(By T. M. Juno)

Bristol High will try to avenge the defeat handed to them last year by the Doylestown High School when the two school teams battled here tomorrow afternoon.

Last year Bristol played, outgeneraled, and outboxed the county seaters; in fact, it did everything but outscore the Doylestown team.

Bristol was defeated 9-6 when Captain Richar of the winning eleven drop-kicked a field goal over the up-rights late in the third quarter.

The Cardinal and Gray will attempt to garner back this victory and is greatly inspired by its recent victory over Langhorne, while Doylestown has a 32-0 defeat at the knees of Sellersville High to work off.

Coach Townsend now has a revamped lineup to work on and sincerely believes that his eleven will conquer the Bucks county seaters.

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected when the whistle sounds at 3:45 p. m.

Will Heavyweight Crown Leave the U. S.?

With Tommy Loughran definitely knocked out of consideration as heavyweight title timber, three S's, Phil Scott (left), the English contender; Herr Maxie Schmeling (center), from Germany, and Jack Sharkey (right), the Boston Gob, are the leaders in the race for Gene Tunney's vacated crown. Jack Sharkey was decidedly "in" when he hung the Kyo on Loughran at the Stadium in New York and proved himself the real American titleholder. In the face of his excellent performance it is hard to see any chance for either Scott or Schmeling. However, these three are the best in view at present. It is up to the Boston boy to keep the title in America when he meets the foreign invaders in the ring.
